

I'm Anh Phan, an international student from Vietnam. I came to the US my 10th grade to explore and experience new things outside of my own bubble. It was quite a challenge at first. However, with the amazing friends I have had, they have helped shape me to who I am today. It honestly one of the best decisions I have ever made in my life. Furthermore, I love sport. I honestly can play most of the popular sport out there that you can name. I'm a very quick learner also. If there is something I don't know, I would usually be able to do it in the matter of 30 minutes. The only thing I can't do is anything music related. I tried and failed many times.

I decided to be a Penn Stater mainly because of the number of alumni and the number of connections that I will be able to connect to. I was shocked to know that all 10000 of freshman was at the convocation. That was the first time I have seen so many people at the same place, not even mentioning the football game. Anyways, my goal in life is to develop and start up my own company. I just love to be in control of everything. I will accept any failure on the way to achieve that target I have created. With that said, I have been coding for a while now so that will complement my journey to be an entrepreneurship. I'm a computer science major.
